I worked extensively in the past for Cultural Logic, a consulting firm specializing in public interest research. Cultural Logic was started by Axel Aubrun, a psychological anthropologist trained at the University of California, San Diego; and Joe Grady, a cognitive linguist trained primarily by George

Lakoff at the University of California, Berkeley. The website is <http://www.culturallogic.com/>.
Examples of reports I helped them prepare include:

2006: Report: "Conceptual Models of Food and Food Systems: A Review of the Literature." Axel Aubrun, Joseph Grady, and Andrew Brown, with Jeffrey Snodgrass. Sponsored by The Kellogg Foundation.

2003: Report: "Global Systems and Global Education." Axel Aubrun and Joseph Grady, with Jeffrey Snodgrass. Cultural Logic, for FrameWorks Institute, Washington, D.C., November 2003.

2003: Report: "Moving Beyond Nature's Surface: Findings from Cognitive Elicitations in Colorado." Axel Aubrun and Joseph Grady, with Jeffrey Snodgrass. October 2003

2002: Report: "Atrazine and the Conventional Farming Paradigm: A Report on Ethnographic Research among Iowa Farmers." Axel Aubrun and Joseph Grady, with Alex Bolyanataz and Jeff Snodgrass. June 6, 2002

PERFORMANCES, EXHIBITS, PRODUCTIONS (Visual/Performing Arts):

Narrator for Joana Roque de Pinho's ethnographic film (with Lindsay Simpson), Through Our Eyes: A Masaai Photographic Journey. Spring 2010.

OTHER ACTIVITIES/ACCOMPLISHMENTS –

Guest Editor/ Creator of new Somatosphere “Bioculturalisms” series; My Intro to the series along with contributions from Downey, Dressler, Lynn, Mendenhall ran in 2015:

<http://somatosphere.net/2015/10/summer-roundup-bioculturalism.html>

Interviews/features on 2015 PNAS publication with Nature India, Conservation International, The Source

Wrote blurb for back cover of Bill Dressler’s new book, The 5 Things You Need to Know about Statistics, Left Coast Press, 2015.

My online gaming research featured in Haviland et al.’s Anthropology: The Human Challenge, 14e. (with honorarium) and will also be featured in Barbara Miller’s Intro to Cult Anth textbook as well. Numerous blog posts, interviews, and media reporting on my lab’s virtual worlds research, such as with David Sirota’s Progressive Talk Radio, Psychology Today, and numerous CSU and other publications.

Co-founder (with Chris Lynn, Greg Downey, and Daniel Lende) a Neuroanthropology Facebook group:

<http://www.facebook.com/groups/neuroanthro/>.

Started Google Groups, FB group, FB page, and Twitter account associated with my virtual worlds lab and research, with student collaborators.

Additional training/ education:

Cells to Society (C2S) Summer Biomarker Institute, Northwestern University, June 8-10, 2009. I learned to incorporate biological measures, such as stress markers (cortisol, c-reactive protein, blood pressure), into my current research projects.

Statistics courses: Audited FA 2009: EDRM 703: Applied Longitudinal Data Analysis; SP 2009: EDRM 606: Measurement Concepts; SP 2009: EDRM 701: Applied Linear Models

2009: Audited: Neuroanatomy, CSU.

Field Research

SP/FA 16: NSF-funded biocultural research in the US.

SU 16: India gaming research.

SU 15: Preliminary field research in Hong Kong, Korea, and France on online gaming—this helped land the NSF grant, which has both a biocultural and cross-cultural component.

Fall 2014 (in association with my ANTH 444: Cultures of Virtual Worlds: Research Methods), Spring 2012 (in formal “group study” with students), Fall 2011 (with ANTH 444), spring 2010 (ANTH 444): Fieldwork on virtual cultures/ online gaming and subjective well-being, conducted with student co-researchers.

Spring 2013, Spring 2012, Summer 2011: Fieldwork in and around the Kuno-Palpur Wildlife Sanctuary with Indigenous Sahariya, funded by NSF. In addition to ethnography, interviews, field surveys, and physical/mental health exam data, I collected with my team saliva samples (for the analysis of stress via cortisol and alpha-amylase) from 60 individuals over two 8-day periods (each before and after an important ritual event), and also mouth buccal cells (for the analysis of chronic stress via DNA telomere length/ shortening). Samples were transported to the U.S. and biological analysis was completed Fall 2012 by Doug Granger's Salimetrics laboratory (Penn St./ Johns Hopkins) and Susan Bailey's telomere lab (here at CSU, Molecular and Radiological Biosciences).

Oct.-Nov., 2010. Fieldwork in India on environmental displacement, stress, and health with Indigenous Sahariya community.

Sept.-Oct. 2010. Exploratory ethnography in France on virtual gaming cultures.

Summer 2008: Culture, environmental change and well-being in the Kuno Wildlife Sanctuary (Madhya Pradesh, India), with the Sahariya tribe; in association with the Indian Institute of Forest Management (Bhopal, Madhya Pradesh)

Spring 2008: Collaborative ethnographic research in the online role-playing game (MMORPG), World of Warcraft. In conjunction with the advanced graduate seminar, ANTH 684: Virtual Cultures: Ethnographic Laboratory.

SU 2007: "Changing Notions of the Good Life in Three Indigenous Societies: Assessing the Relation between Environmental Change, Culture, and Mental Well-being." Rajasthan/ Madhya Pradesh (India). Sahariya community.

SU 2006: Rajasthan & Madhya Pradesh, India; Kuno Wildlife Sanctuary (MP) and neighboring areas in Baran district (Raj.); Sahariya community; deforestation and mental health. National Geographic.

Fall 2005: Rajasthan, India; Bhil, Girasia, and Kathodi Indigenous communities; relationship between religion and environmental thought and practice. Funded by National Geographic.
