

State of Momentum

Dance Major Audition & Visit Days Nov. 3, 2017, and Feb. 2, 2018

Meet with faculty, take master classes in modern and ballet technique, audition for the dance major and dance scholarships, tour the University Center for the Arts, and attend an informal dance performance by CSU Dance majors. Technique class placement is also determined during auditions.

Visit and Audition Day is open to high school juniors, seniors, and transfer students; registration is required. dance.colostate.edu

Opportunities for Non-Majors

Students across the university are encouraged to join a dance class, or audition for placement in performances and advanced dance classes. For non-majors, enrollment in dance major technique classes depends on space availability, technical level, and suitability. Auditions take place during class the first week of the semester. Please let us know you are coming!

Auditions for dance productions, and guest artist pieces are held at the beginning of each semester. Please join us!

Find out more: dance.colostate.edu or email J.Slusarski-Harris@colostate.edu

CSU Dance

The School of Music, Theatre and Dance offers a competitive education training center that prepares majors for professional careers in the field of dance. Dance students explore the many possibilities for movement expression, along with creativity and scholarly examination, in a challenging and supportive environment.

In addition to regular training in ballet and modern dance technique, the curriculum requires performance, choreography, pedagogy, production, and academic coursework. Numerous performance opportunities include six separate productions each year and regular guest artist residencies and master classes.

“Find Your State” at Colorado State University and join a dance community that is moving forward!

Colorado State University

SCHOOL OF MUSIC, THEATRE, AND DANCE